Khemobuddys is a non-profit organization (501C3) in the state of California; founded by cancer-survivor, Kym Keyes. Khemobuddys, an hands-on support group with a team of dedicated volunteers, who spend their days visiting cancer treatment centers and hospitals to give, much needed, support to chemotherapy patients and their families. Khemobuddys' volunteers deliver their highly coveted, free care packs, infamously known as, "Buddy bags." The complimentary "Buddy Bags" are filled with many vital essential items needed for cancer patients' 5-8 hour chemotherapy infusion sessions (i.e. soft fleece blankets, warm socks, bottled waters, ginger ale, activity books, sanitizers, snacks, other vital resources).

Founder, Kym Keyes says, "...we are excited to be hosted by the Ontario Reign as a community partner! Khemobuddys was conceived out of my own desire for a "Buddy" while going through chemotherapy treatment. During my very harsh, 22-month treatment plan, I often found myself afraid and alone. I was single, had 2 young adult children, who needed me. I couldn't tell anyone what I needed, because I wasn't sure myself.... As I sat in the treatment room, unable to go anywhere except to the restroom with an I.V. pole attached; many days, I was scared, hungry, weak, and unsure... I was alone and because of those painful days, I created Khemobuddys to provide mental, emotional and physical support to chemotherapy Patients of all walks of life.

The public, press and media is invited to join us. During halftime; Khemobuddys will invite a ticketed donor to join them on the ice to "Chuck'A'Puck." Donations are accepted and corporate sponsorships are available. Khemobuddys is also looking for volunteers to work with cancer patients battling cancer and chemotherapy; please go to <http://www.Khemobuddys.org> or call 909.781.3917. If you know of anyone battling cancer; contact Khemobuddys for support.
